CENTENARY DEDICATION.

A hundred years ago, a handful of men and women, followers of John Wesley, assembled in John Street, to dedicate a chapel they had reared for worship. The building was of wood, unpainted and unfinished. The minister and his people built the church with their own hands. The seats were without backs; the gallery was without front; and when occupied, men and women climbed up to it by a ladder. It was contrary to law to build a place of worship in New York at that time, except for the Dutch or Churchmen. The Dutch were very lenient and would not have disturbed the Methodists if they had built a dozen chapels. The Methodists were conscientious, and applied to the Dutch authorities to know how they could erect their house of worship and not violate law. The sturdy Dutchmen told them to put a chimney and a mantlepiece into the house, and it would be a dwelling and not a chapel. So the first Methodist church in America sprang into being. The site of the first chapel is retained to this day. On it stands a plain, unpretending-looking brick building, known as John Street Church. It was densely crowded on the 25th of October, the anniversary of the dedication of the first church 100 years ago. Bishop James presided. A love feast, a sermon by the bishop, a free conference meeting, and a collection of $3,000 to meet the repairs of the church, marked the occasion. The property is worth not less than $100,000. It is now owned by the denomination, and the trustees are elected by the General Conference, which meets once in four years. A tablet was unveiled, erected to the memory of Philip Embury, the first pastor, who built the pulpit with his own hands, and to Barbara Hicks, who broke up the convulsion of card-playing Methodists, drove them to prayer and Embury to the pulpit. The Bible that was used by Bishop Embury on this occasion, the Methodists of to-day, with their many altars girdling the earth, on which the sun does not set; with their colleges, educational and theological institutions; with countless church edifices of marble and stone, among the most costly in the land; with an unnumbered membership, embracing orators, poets, scholars and statesmen; with its mighty centenary donations embracing individual gifts from $1,000 to $250,000—form a marked contrast to the little company who, in their weakness and poverty reared the first chapel on the site of the John Street Church.

THE LIBERALITY OF NEW YORK.

The Bible pronounces the traders of Tyre to have been "merchant princes." Commerce seems to be peculiarly liberalizing, and great cities, while they necessarily hold great crimes and corruption, represent also great liberality and virtue. When the English Exchequer, was empty, the London merchants presented Elizabeth with ships and immense sums of money to repel the Spanish Armada. The wickedness of New York is the theme of general remark. It is supposed to be a very Sodom, dangerous to enter, while the marvel is that God does not sink it as he did Gomorrah. In no place has education, virtue, humanity and religion more friends than in New York. In no place are churches more elegant or better sustained. The liberality of the New York merchants is marvellous. When disasters come, by famine, fire, pestilence or plague—in the West, in the South, in the islands of the sea, in England, in Abyssinia, or elsewhere—the earliest and the most liberal response comes from New York. When Mrs. Franklin could make no impression on the English Government, she found a New York merchant whose heart and purse were open to search among the Arctic snows for the remains of her husband. Some New York merchants give away annually a certain percentage of their income, keeping the account as strictly with themselves as they would with a bank. Gifts of ten, twenty, and fifty thousand dollars, to public objects, are very common. It is no unusual thing for the New York Seventh Regiment to raise $10,000 at a meeting of the board of officers. The regiment is a thousand strong; ten dollars to each man is a small assessment when each member could easily raise fifty dollars and not feel it. During the political campaign just closed, hundreds of men subscribed from $1,000 to $10,000 for the canvass. One man presented his check for $20,000, another for $50,000. The morning after the State nominations were made in New York, an enterprising merchant sent to the general committee, his check for $100,000 to carry on the campaign. The Young Men's Christian Association of this city are erecting a superb building on Fourth Avenue, to cost $300,000. The money is in the bank. It was subscribed by Christian merchants. It was raised in an incredibly short time. A large number of the subscriptions being $10,000 each. These are but specimens of the way in which New York does its business.

JOHN ALLEN OF WATER STREET.

There is quite a hull in the matters in Water Street. John Allen has subided. His rooms are closed, for the police will not allow him to re-open. A room has been hired close to his den and meetings are held daily and nightly. The day meetings do not amount to much. In the evening the attendance is very good and made up of the dwellers in Water Street. It seems marvellous that sensible men could have been deceived in John Allen. A sensation writer, pondering the morbid and purulent tastes of our low populace, sounding the depths of depraved New York, by nightly visits, ran upon the den of John Allen. He is an ignorant, coarse, shrewd, tonguey, depraved fellow. His father is a plain farmer in the centre of the State of New York. He has two brothers who are preachers. In the centre of his vile den, where he had made some money, he took the rank of Satan in Pandemonium. A gassy, conceited man, ordering round the poor creatures who looked to him for bread. He was fond of talking with his visitors about his grand relations. He was making no money, but losing it, and was looking round for a chance to sell out, when he found himself lifted into notoriety by being described as the most depraved man in the city. He was drunk every day, openly and notoriously drunk, yet he found religious people to take him by the hand and lionize him. His den for which he gave $1,000 a year, he rented for $250 a month. Foul-mouthed, obscene, and profane beyond description, he was allowed to be master of ceremonies at the religious meetings in his rooms, and hold a levee after the service when he was often so drunk that he could scarcely stand. He tried to talk several times in religious meetings, but his incoherent ramblings were shut off by the leader. One day he attempted to pray, and after he got through, went round to Kit Burn's for his usual dram. His wife, one of the most foul-mouthed, profane and drunken of women, before and since, sat in the seat of honor at the meetings, received the congratulations and attentions of respectable women who came from a circuit of thirty miles to look at her. Allen expected to have the building off his hands; to have it turned into a refuge, of which he should be the head, while he would add largely to his income by lectures which he proposed to give throughout the country. He was on probation a month, during which time his rooms were hired. He put himself on his best behavior, which was bad enough. He painted on the outside of his building "Water Street Mission for Fallen Women." He was anxious to begin his lectures and make money. His conduct became so disgraceful that his new friends had to let him go. He threw off the mask at once. His house had never been clear of vile women. He took a ladder and with his own hand painted out the sign that he had put up. He re-opened his establishment. His wife appeared in front, as of old, drunken, obscene and defiant. He threw open his doors and invited in the crowd. Within twenty-four hours after a man was robbed in his den. The police entered, broke up the establishment, marched Allen and his wife up to the court, and they are still under bonds for robbery and keeping a disorderly house. And so ends the new role of John Allen.

AMUSEMENTS IN THE CITY.

The drama promises soon to be among the lost arts. The opera has a few friends, and, with occasional sensations of a prima donna, holds its existence among us. Wallack's theatre maintains a respectable mediocrity. It holds a half way position between the old drama and the sensation plays of the present age. This place of amusement is elegant, quiet and orderly. The parts are put on to the stage with artistic finish, and the dresses of the performers are very elegant, and usually very befitting. There is a great propriety about the whole establishment. Since Mrs. Hoey left the boards, the performers have hardly been second rate. Pike's opera house, very costly and elegant, is already pronounced a failure. It is too far up town, and too far over for the fashionables. It is too elegant and artistic for the lovers of the horse opera and sensation dramas, who can be cheaper entertained down town. It is now rumored that Mr. Drew is to secure this building as a depot for the Erie Road, Vanderbilt having secured St. John's Park, at the cost of a million of dollars for the Central. The fact that such a burlesque as Humpty Dumpty can have a run of over 100 nights, to crowded houses, tells the story of the taste in New York. Low burlesques and Black Crooks are the favorites. Wood, the brother of Fernando, has secured the garments of Barnum, and proposes to run a museum as a place of family entertainment.

RITUALISM IN NON-EPISCOPAL CHURCHES.

The present rage is for religious matters with some tinge of sacred association. One of our leading furniture men has on exhibition a magnificent set of pulpit furniture, made for the new national church at Washington. The pulpit, sofa, tables, etc., are made from wood brought from Gethsemane, the Mount of Olives, Mount Lebanon, and other sacred places. The vestibule of the church is to be paved with the marble that once adorned the court of Solomon's Temple. Other churches are in quest of religious wood. Puritan ministers advertise baptisms with Jordan water, and if the Ritualists do not look to their laurels, the Puritan Churches will outstrip them in vestments and adornings. Old candlesticks, match-boxes and other relics of the past were exhibited to the faithful in John Street Church the other Sunday. The body garment of Treves is quite as worthy of adoration as a pair of pewter snufflers used to snuff candles in a church 100 years ago. After all, there is a great deal of human nature in the different denominations, though each has a peculiar way of showing it.

MINISTER TO ENGLAND.—The Standard has the appointment of Horace Greeley as Minister to England, under Grant's Administration. It says:

"The right thing is to make Mr. Greeley Minister to England. In that country he will be at home. He will feel that he is doing real service to his own people, while the English will welcome him to their hearts. He will exercise over them such an influence as no American has wielded in Europe since the days of Ben Franklin. He will achieve by his presence what Rev. Mr. Johnson can't achieve with all his silly fawning upon the envenomed enemies of his native land. He will also, without doubt, introduce a new court costume. He will pass through an honored and memorable career there, and will be all ready to come home and run successfully for President in 1875, after Gen. Grant has completed his second term."

"Altogether the mission to St. James' is the office to which Mr. Greeley should be appointed; and the sooner it is done the better for the fair fame of the United States."

NOT MARRIED.—Mr. Speaker Colfax is not married, as some of our exchanges have stated. The event will take place on the 18th inst., at Ashtabula, Ohio.

HEALTH AND HOME.—Such is the title of a Rural and Family paper to be started in New York in January by Messrs. Pettengill, Bates, & Co. It will be devoted to all that pertains to country life in its broadest sense, and will be under the general editorial charge of Mr. Donald G. Mitchell. The House and Fireside Departments will be under the supervision of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe who will contribute regularly to its columns. We wish the new enterprise of the Messrs. Pettengill abundant success.

DR. WISTAR'S

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

In the whole history of medical discoveries no remedy has performed so many so remarkable cures of the numerous affections of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, as this long-tried and justly celebrated Balsam. So generally acknowledged is the superior excellence of this remedy that but few of the many who have tested its virtues by experience fail to keep it at hand as a speedy and certain cure for sudden attacks of cold—fully believing that its remedial powers are comprehensive enough to embrace every form of disease, from the slightest cold to the most dangerous symptom of pulmonary complaint.

Unsolicited Testimony.

From Rev. FRANCIS LORDELL, Pastor of the South Congregational Church, Bridgeport, Connecticut.

"I consider it a duty which I owe to suffering humanity to bear testimony to the virtues of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. I have used it—when I have had occasion for any remedy for coughs, colds or sore throat—for many years, and never in a single instance has it failed to relieve and cure me. I have frequently been very hoarse on Saturday, and looked forward to the delivery of two sermons on the following day with sad misgivings, but by a liberal use of the Balsam my hoarseness has invariably been removed, and I have preached without difficulty. I commend it to my brethren in the ministry, and to public speakers generally, as a certain remedy for the bronchial troubles to which we are peculiarly exposed."

GRACE'S CELEBRATED SALVE.

From Mr. E. Tucker, Depot Master at Salisbury, Mass.

"I have been troubled for years with a bad humor, sometimes outwardly and sometimes inwardly. During the past summer it manifested itself more than usual outwardly, and I used your Salve. All signs of it have since disappeared, without affecting me inwardly, indicating, I think, the eradication of the Salve."

WOMAN.

FEMALES, OWING TO THE PECULIAR and important relations which they sustain, their peculiar organization, and the offices they perform, are subject to many sufferings. Freedom from these, and the consequent small degree to their happiness and welfare, for none can be happy who are ill. Not only so, but no one of these various female complaints can long be suffered to run on without involving the general health of the individual, and are long producing permanent sickness and premature decline. Nor is it pleasant to consult a physician for the relief of these various delicate affections, and only upon the most urgent necessity will a true woman so far sacrifice her greatest charm as to do this. The sex will then thank us for placing in their hands simple specifics which will be found efficacious in relieving and curing almost every one of those troublesome complaints peculiar to the sex.

HELMHOLD'S EXTRACT OF BECHT.—Hundreds suffer in silence, and hundreds of others apply vainly to druggists and doctors, who either merely tantalize them with the hope of a cure or apply remedies which make them worse. I would not wish to assert anything that would do justice to the afflicted, but I am obliged to say that although it may be produced from excessive exhaustion of the powers of life, by laborious employment, much exposure to air and food, profuse menstruation, the use of tea and coffee, and frequent childbearing, it is far often caused by direct irritation, applied to the mucous membrane of the vagina itself.

When reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, it is most painful to contemplate the simple justice consequent upon them. It is but simple justice to the subject to enumerate a few of the many additional causes which so largely affect the life, health, and happiness of woman in all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect more or less directly, the welfare of the entire human family. The mania that exists for precocious education and marriage, causes the years that nature designed for corporeal development to be wasted and perverted in the restraints of dress, the early confinement of school, and especially in the unhealthy excitement of the ball-room. Thus, with the body half-clothed, and the mind unduly excited by pleasure, perverting in midnight revels the hours designed by nature for sleep and rest, the work of destruction is half accomplished.

In consequence of this early strain upon her system, unnecessary effort is required by the delicate woman to retain her situation in school at a later day, thus aggravating the evil. When one excitement is over, another in prospective keeps the mind morbidly sensitive to impression, while the now constant restraint of fashionable dress, absolutely forbidding the exercise indispensable to the attainment and retention of organic health and strength; the exposure to night air; the sudden change of temperature; the complete prostration produced by excessive dancing, must, of necessity, produce their legitimate effect. At last, an early marriage capes the climax of misery, and the unfortunate one, hitherto so stately regardless of the plain dictates and remonstrances of her delicate nature, becomes an unwilling subject of medical treatment. This is a true and a painful picture of the experience of thousands of our young women.

Long before the ability to exercise the functions of the generative organs, they require an education of their peculiar nervous system, composed of what is called the tissue, which is, in common with the female brain and lungs, entirely under the control of mental emotions and associations at an early period of life; and, as we shall subsequently see, these emotions, when excessive lead, long before puberty, to habits which sap the very life of their victims, and nature has self-completed their development.

For Female Weakness and Debility, Whites or Leucorrhoea, Too Profuse Menstruation, Exhaustion, Too Long Continued Periods, for Propagation and Bearing Down, or Prolapsus Uteri, we offer the most perfect specific known; HELMOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF BECHT. Directions for use, diet, and advice, accompany.

Females in every period of life, from infancy to extreme old age, will find a rational and nature in the discharge of its functions. Strength is the glory of manhood and womanhood. HELMOLD'S EXTRACT BECHT is more strength giving than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron, infinitely safer, and more pleasant. HELMOLD'S EXTRACT BECHT, having received the endorsement of the most prominent physicians in the United States, is now offered to afflicted humanity as a certain cure for the following diseases and symptoms, from whatever cause originating: General Debility, Mental and Physical Depression, Indisposition, Determination of Blood to the Head, Confused Ideas, Hysteria, General Irritability, Restlessness and Sleeplessness at Night, Absence of Muscular Efficiency, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, Low Spirits, Disorganization or Paralysis of the Organs of Generation, Palpitation of the Heart, and, in fact, all the concomitants of a Nervous and Debilitated state of the system. To insure the genuine, cut this out. Ask for HELMOLD'S, take no other. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Price $1.25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6.50. Delivered to any address. DEAR SIR: I write to acknowledge the letter I have received from the Welden Spring Water. I have been troubled with Disease of the Kidneys for many years. I have consulted some of the best physicians in the country, I received no relief. Some few months since was recommended to try the Welden Spring Water. I had not taken it long before I was surprised to see how much good it had done. Since then I always keep it in my room, and I am sure that every other water, knowing even it will cure me. As I am anxious that it should be benefited by my experience, I fully recommend it to all suffering with same disease. Respectfully,

E. S. GOODWIN.

DEAR SIR: I cheerfully comply with your request to give you my candid opinion of the water of the Welden Spring Water. For some years have suffered much from Dyspepsia, and being exhausted patient medicines and the prescriptions of many physicians, I was advised to try the Welden Spring Water. I found by using a glass of the water before meals it acts as a tonic and general regulator of the system, enables me to eat any kind of food without inconvenience. The only evidence I can give my appreciation of its virtues is a recommendation to every one suffering from Dyspepsia try it.

Yours truly, FRANK B. DIXON
